- Complete this application and then mail or fax it back to FPMA (see contact information below).
- Submit a separate Podiatric X-Ray Assistant Home Study Recertification Course application for each applicant.
- The Podiatric X-Ray Assistant Home Study Recertification Course may only be used for recertification of an individual who already holds a certificate from the Florida Board of Podiatric Medicine (i.e., a license beginning with "PXA").
- Completion of the Podiatric X-Ray Assistant Home Study Recertification Course does not apply toward certificates granted by the Bureau of Radiation Control.
- The Podiatric X-Ray Assistant Home Study Recertification Course may be used for renewal for two consecutive bienniums, but for the following biennium, an X-Ray assistant must physically attend a "live" Podiatric X-Ray Assistant course. Once a Podiatric X-Ray assistant attends a "live" course, the cycle for renewal begins again (i.e., Home Study for two consecutive bienniums and a "live" course for the third biennium).
- You will receive a copy of the Podiatric X-Ray Assistant Home Study Recertification Course exam as well as links to the X-Ray manual and Medical Errors manual needed to prepare for the exam. Once you complete the exam, it needs to be returned to FPMA.
- Upon passing the Podiatric X-Ray Assistant Home Study Recertification course exam, you will receive a letter of certification that can be used when you fill out your application for Podiatric X-Ray Assistant recertification by the Florida Board of Podiatric Medicine.
